

About Michelle Barry

With 20 years of experience working in secondary schools and the sport sector, Michelle is currently a Physical Education Leader for the Active Schools program, a Victorian Government initiative to build the capacity of schools to deliver programs that create active kids and help build active communities.

Prior to this, Michelle has worked with Tennis Victoria, growing their tennis in schools' program, competition pathways and creating opportunities for teens to play tennis socially in the community.

Michelle sits on the School Sport Victorian advisory committee, where her teaching, experience in working for a State Sporting Organisation, along with her involvement in community sport allows her to bring a unique perspective to this committee.
